'Fun In The Sun' At Women's Club Fashion Show Thursday

A BACKDROP of Valley hills provides a breathtaking view for models, Mrs. Les Jewett and Mrs. Irving Ollason, from the veranda above the pool at the Cruickshank home on Carmel Valley Road. Guests will view the fashions from the poolside patio while enjoying their desserts.

MRS. FAYE ELLIOT, who is among the models for the "Fun In the Sun" show tomorrow, pauses against a background of mosaic decoration designed by Millard Sheets for Mrs. Cruickshank.

Free Rides To Cruickshank CV Road Home

Free taxi service will be provided for the Carmel Valley Women's Club fashion show, "Fun in the Sun," to be held Thursday at the Carmel Valley Road home of Mrs. F. G. Cruickshank.

Cars will leave from two points in the Valley to minimize the problem of guest parking.

According to Tom Waters, who is in charge of traffic direction, volunteer drivers from the CV Kiwanis Club will pick up guests for the show from the Village Shopping Center in front of Ellen Waters Shop and from Los Laureles Lodge.

Ladies may park their cars in these two locations and will be returned to their automobiles at the end of the afternoon gathering.

Those who have volunteered their services as drivers are Bill Mallek, Larry Cummings, Ken Van Hagen, Les Jewett, George Clifford, Jack Lundin, Kevin Walsh and Andy Fitzgerald.

RESIDENT SPOTS RATTLER

Alice Harwood of Laurel Drive stopped at the Outlook office this week to report having seen a rattlesnake above the William Ricker house, crossing the road just below her home.

She stopped the car and verified that it was indeed a rattler, about three feet long and carrying two or three buttons. Since she was dressed for town, with no weapon at hand, she deigned to investigate more closely and it continued on its way.

During the summer rattlers are seen even in the more populated areas throughout the Valley, so children should be advised and warned to be on the lookout for snakes. This is the first one that has been reported so far this year, but as the weather becomes hotter, more will appear.

Volunteers, Tigers Win LL Openers

A standing room only crowd cheered the Volunteers and the Tigers to victory Saturday in the opening day doubleheader of Carmel Valley Little League.

The winners of the two games clash Thursday in the season's third game.

Little League Pres. Sherman LaFave called it "one of the best opening days in Carmel Valley."

The Little League field bleachers -- located next to the Valley firehouse -- overflowed with interested parents and brothers and sisters.

LaFave said the enthusiasm "really told" in the faces of the audience.

The Volunteers beat the Red Sox 9-6, while the Tigers whipped the Giants 8-1. In the second game, Greg Willis struck out 16 Giant batters.

The public address system provided by Tom Boyd was "a sensation," said LaFave. He added that the League expects to have a popcorn machine operating at the field within two weeks.

LaFave thanked the speakers and performers who participated in opening day ceremonies and all others "who made the ceremonies possible."

Farm Team Signups

Registration for farm teams in Carmel Valley Little League will be held Saturday from 12:30-1:30 p.m. at the Little League field next to the Valley firehouse on Via Contenta.

AAU Duet Championships

Lanes Second at San Antonio

Marilyn and Marsha Lane, daughters of Cmdr. and Mrs. Ariel Lane of Via Mallorca, placed second in the AAU Junior National Duet Swimming Championships in San Antonio, Tex. Sunday.

The competition was held in the San Antonio College pool and the girls swam in preliminary and stunt catagories before winning the silver second place medals.

In the stunt competition, Marsha placed above the two entrants who won first place, and above her sister, Marilyn, for the first time.

Both girls will give an exhibition in synchronized swimming in Carmel Valley Sunday at the Festival of the Grape benefit wine tasting party to be held at Rancho del Monte Country Club from 3 to 5 p.m.

Women's Club Sprouts Crazy Hats

Fantastic headdresses were the order of the day at last week's "Crazy Hat Luncheon" given by the Carmel Valley Women's Club at the Community Center.

Mrs. Ollie Dick was awarded the honor of Most Beautiful Hat with her natural flower garden made of styrofoam completely covered with fresh blossoms.

The Craziest Hat honor went to Mrs. Lorraine Ruprecht for her chin-tie creation in the shape of a brilliant orange, yellow and blue rooster.

Awarded the distinction of Most Creative and Ingenious Use of Materials, Mrs. Betty Lambert sported a hat made from a plastic Clorox bottle, topped with a clothesline of tiny diapers held by small clothespins. The laundry blew gaily in the breeze as she moved.

CV Airstrip on School Agenda

In response to a letter from the Tularcitos Parents Club expressing concern over the proximity of the CV airstrip to the school, the CUSD Board of Education contacted both the California Aeronautics Division at Sacramento and the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) at Oakland.

Communications from both agencies have been received and are on the agenda for the board meeting tonight at 7:30 at the high school.

California Aeronautics Division stated that from an official and legal point of view, the airstrip has a legal permit issued under the "grandfather clause." This means it was established before present regulations were set and is considered substandard by revised rules.

Sheriff's Blotter

Thieves Hit Two Automobiles In Valley During Week—Deputies

By REX PRYER
Outlook Correspondent

Thieves stole hubcaps from two Carmel Valley automobiles in two separate incidents, Sheriff's deputies reported this week.

A pair of chrome spoke hubcaps worth $37.50 were taken from the car of a Carmel Knolls resident Sunday. He reported that he saw two men jump into a green Studebaker sedan with black doors and different colored fenders when he spotted them.

He had gotten up at 4 a.m. for a fishing trip.

The other incident was on S. Carmel Hills Dr. where someone stole a spinner-type wheel cover -- plus wheel and tire -- between 1-8 a.m. Friday. The thieves used an old hydraulic jack which they left under the car.

Deputies also reported these Carmel Valley incidents:

—A 15-year-old Carmel boy was shot in the leg accidentally while walking with a friend near Carmel River in the Valley. The post medical officer at Fort Ord reported that the boy was treated at the Fort Ord hospital and released. He had been hit in the leg by a bullet discharged from a 20-caliber air gun.

—A fire extinguisher was reported stolen from Carmel Hacienda by a night watchman Friday. The thieves must have been on foot, deputies surmised. The extinguisher was a Buffalo 16-inch tall red one.

—A Carmel Rancho hardware store salesman caught two 14-year-old boys stealing a key blank from the store Saturday. Both were released to their parents after a deputy discussed the incident with both the boys and their parents.

—A group of motorcyclists were reported circling the block and cutting through the parking lot of Canary Cottages Sunday. All were gone upon arrival of a patrol car, however.

Gem, Mineral Society to Meet Friday at CJHS

Carmel Valley Gem and Mineral Society will hold its monthly meeting Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the library of Carmel Junior High School. Walter Woods, a rockhound and lapidarist of long standing, will be the program speaker.

He will discuss equipment he has developed and techniques he has originated for working with stones. Guests and newcomers to the Peninsula are invited to attend.

Anyone interested in joining the group may contact Harry Ragsdale at 375-3088.

Otters Make Comeback, Club Learns

Sea otters, once thought to have been hunted to extinction off the California coast, are making a slow comback, particularly off Pacific Grove.

Since being spotted 20 years ago, they have grown in numbers to an estimated 400 between Point Conception in the vicinity of Santa Barbara to the Carmel area.

This was disclosed in a talk and film presented by Game Warden Warren Smith to Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club last week at Los Laureles Lodge. Lou Gardner made the introduction.

Sea otters are the only animal besides man to use a tool, Smith said. Otters break open shellfish by hammering with rocks. Often they float on their backs and hammer shells against their chest with a rock.

The Kiwanis Club also honored leaders of its Boy Scout troop. The annual presentation of the troop's new charter was presented by Committee Chairman Phil Cordrey to Scoutmaster Bob Ray. Other troop committee Kiwanians include Ralph Updike and Lou Allaire.

Les Jewett of Carmel Valley Realty was inducted as a new Kiwanis member by Tom Waters.

Bob Lambert reported that his model airplane activity, which carried on for eight weeks on Saturdays, ended with a major meet Saturday. Fifteen, including three girls, started out, and seven completed the course.

Lambert announced these winners:

Starker White, first place; Peter Mauzey, second; Jim Richards, third; Joe Bottaro, fourth.

Honorable mention went to Sue Wright and Betty Evans.

Birthday Time for Sodality

The first birthday of the Sodality of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church will be honored by its members Sunday, when they gather for a ceremony after the 12:15 p.m. Mass in the Catholic Church on El Caminito.

At that time, nearly 40 new members will be installed after an installation ceremony for the sodality's new officers. This will raise the total membership to almost 80 for the organization which was formed a year ago for the women associated with the Valley's Catholic Church.

An informal reception in the patio of the church rectory afterward will give an opportunity for new and old members and their husbands and children to meet each other. Babysitting for the babies and small children of the members will be provided in the social hall of the church during the reception.

Mrs. Tom Waters will be installed as the sodality's new prefect, Mrs. George Gregory will become the new vice prefect, Mrs. John Klein will take office as secretary, Mrs. Roger Sherman will be treasurer and Mrs. William Conlan will become recorder.

A staff of chairmen will also be installed.

The Rev. James Voytko, pastor, will speak to the group during the ceremony, welcoming the new members, and the Rev. Juan Oronoz will install them as sodality chaplain.

Historically, the Sodality is descended from the original Confraternity of Sodalists founded in 1563 by the Rev. John Leonitis in an effort to "solidify" (from this, the name) the faithful against attacks by revolutionists, and to defend the respect for the Virgin Mary, which was also under attack.

Today, the purpose of the group is to provide spiritual formation for the women of the church, with financial and social aims also a part of its activities.

The women of the church have been actively fulfilling these aims during the sodality's first year. Under the guidance of Mrs. H. G. B. Hatch, their first prefect, they have redecorated the church social hall and started landscaping the parish grounds as well as continuing the work of caring for the altar.

A mid-summer rummage sale, the Sale-A-Rama, became so popular that it has become a weekly event from 1 to 4 p.m. every Friday in the social hall and is known as the Sale-A-Rama pre-sale.

It has become successful enough to pay the cost of the sodality's projects mentioned above, and Mrs. Lou Allaire, chairman of the sale, has added two more chairmen, Mrs. George Garner and Mrs. William Neidinger, to her staff.

In its social capacity, the sodality presented its "Kaffee Klatch and Fashions" last month at the home of Mrs. Klein, with nearly 100 members and guests participating. Coffee hours have welcomed new parishioners, and a series of summer card parties provided recreation for bridge and canasta players.

With the accent on spiritual formation, the sodality opened a library for sodality members in the social hall with a wide variety of books available.

The members gather before the monthly meeting on the first Tuesday of the month in the church to repeat the Little Office of the Blessed Virgin together. Their chaplain, Fr. Juan has given a series of talks at their meetings, forming them in the spirit of the sodality, and informing them of the inspiring changes in the church today.

In May of last year, the ecumenical spirit came to the Valley when the clergy and representatives from a variety of Valley churches participated in the blessing and dedication of the Madonna of the Valley in Carmel Valley Village. The sodality also planned this event and served refreshments to participants and passers-by afterward.

Membership in the sodality is open to all women, whether Catholic, wives of Catholics or interested persons. Those who wish to join may contact Fr. Voytko at the parish house.

GIRL SCOUT Junior Troop 2133 gives the promise and laws for "A Family Evening at the Forest Theater" recently. Mrs. Lloyd Campbell is their leader. Ten Girl Scout troops participated in this event. Junior Troop 2035 presented the Flag Ceremony. Junior Troop 2118 presented "Bridges, Badges, and a Folk Dance." Cadette Troop 2158 sang several songs accompanied by the guitar. Brownies from Troop 2084 sang The Brownie Smile Song and Brownies from Troop 2008 danced a folk dance to the same song. Brownie Troop 2121 sang songs led by Cadette Lesa Smith, and Brownies from Troop 2080 presented a skit on Brownie "B's." Junior Troop 2009 demonstrated the Compass Game and Junior Troop 2063 sang and original song, "Carmel-By-The-Sea," written by Mrs. Paul Banker and led by Mrs. C. E. Welchner. Mrs. Welchner then led the entire group in a short community sing. Taps was sung and then refreshments were served on the stage of the Forest Theater to the Scouts and their guests.

Carmel School District Should Move Fast In Upgrading High School Journalism

When the Carmel Unified School District Citizens Subcommittee on English called for an improvement in the journalism instruction program at Carmel High School last week the group underscored a badly-needed educational program.

The Outlook adds its approval to the subcommittee's proposals:

--"Courses in journalism or communication arts ... should be established..."

--"The high school newspaper should be expanded."

Publishers throughout the state -- and the country, as a matter of fact -- are complaining that today's schools are not turning out competent reporter material. This education is the duty of the colleges and universities, but unless prospective journalists are exposed to needed skills in high school, most will bypass journalism as a field of study.

The fact is that newspaper, magazine and public relations writing skills are substantially unique, as compared to other types of writing as taught in regular English courses.

The editor of Education News Service reports in a feature on page 11 that California journalism teachers regard the overall program in the state as an "academic slum."

Carmel High can institute a move to change substantially that view, at least on the local scene. It would take a whale of a lot of planning and competent teaching personnel, but this newspaper is convinced the results -- if the program is carried out well -- will be rewarding.

For the student especially, we can vouch for the fact that there are few thrills to match that of seeing your name in a newspaper byline for the first time. This is true even if it is a school paper with comparatively limited circulation.

The next step in the evaluation of the subcommittee reports, according to Supt. Medill Bair, is for district teachers to read and react to them.

We sincerely urge the English department at the high school to take a second look at its journalism offerings. Many schools in nearby communities have little trouble publishing a printed student newspaper on a regular basis.

At Carmel High, however, the mimeographed sheet is irregular at best.

If this is the best the school can do, it would appear that the whole journalism curriculum is due for a long-awaited overhaul.

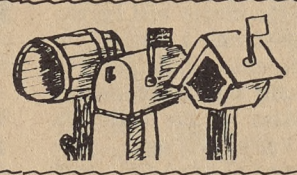
Little League Opponent Has Say



EDITOR—It happens every spring. Everyone wants to get into the act. Everyone is as happy as if he had good sense - the sponsors, the managers, the umpires, the grounds keepers, the scorekeepers, the announcers and the parents. Everyone is ecstatic with the beginning of the Little League season.

Everything is planned with super-organization, right down to the hot dogs and soda pop. The sign-up requires a birth certificate - don't forget that or little Johnny won't get a chance to try out for a team. And if you missed the official sign-up, tough break. Johnny is out of luck this year.

This whole thing has gotten so far out of hand that I am surprised any parents allow their "important people" (they used to be called "boys") to participate. Baseball for young boys is not a "family function" or a business gimmick; but it is becoming both, at the expense of the children for whom it was originally intended.

There is no evidence with which to prove that Little League "provides a better future for that young man-to-be" or that this is "their biggest moment when dressed so elegantly for the occasion" or even that "games are much more interesting when announced."

This may be true from the adults' point of view, but it was never intended to be anything at all for grown-ups - any more than skate boards, hula hoops, or kite flying are for grown-ups.

Sand lot baseball used to be the social proving ground where boys tried in their clumsy way to grow up. They had fun, fights, victory and defeat, but they learned in their own way how to get along with other boys, how to work together to win, or at least try to win. Games were called when the kid with the bat had to go practice the piano, or when dinner was ready, or when it was too cold (for the boys, not the dads), or when Johnny had a sore arm and didn't want to throw anymore.

Everyone played, leaders emerged, and by trial and error they began to learn that other people matter, even if they aren't really great baseball players. But then, no 12-year-old is developed enough to be a great baseball player. That comes much later in life, if it comes at all.

Boys can be forced into competitive teamwork, and, through the application of enough of the right kind of parental pressure, the system will prevail. Boys of Little League age are not mature enough to understand the concept of team work, and it is a burden which no young boy should have to bear.

I am not against baseball. I am against the excessive adult participation, the adult need to win and the adult compulsion to force young boys to accept the adult concept of competition.

I am in favor of the natural healthy growth of boys competing with their peers in sports under responsible supervision. Under those circumstances they will grow to be better men.

I am in favor of athletic competition, but not at the expense of the individual, his school work or his normal growth as a social being.

My appeal for Little League is for more spectators, fewer meddling adults, and less pushing from parents. Dad, do your son a favor...go sit in the stands, or go push a lawn mower.

Bernstein - 'Fine Article'

EDITOR—We wish to congratulate you on your fine article in the April 14 issue of the Outlook on Larry Bernstein. We are familiar with his work and would like to say that his talent is a unique asset to our Valley.

We, too, are looking forward to enjoying the growth of his proposed "Casa Suzanne." Eleven houses, all related harmoniously to each other and to their surroundings in one flowing composition of man, nature, and hillside, will be a treat that we are long overdue in receiving here in this perfect countryside.

We cannot visualize and neither can our friends how it would be possible for our elected county fathers not to see the wisdom of this approach. To pull out of "the book" standards intended for controlling an entirely different type of neighborhood and set of circumstances would certainly betray the trust in good common sense shown to these people in bringing them to office.

No one certainly would want to see such a concept destroyed by roads and lot sizes vastly out of proportion to the Robles atmosphere enjoyed for so many years by its residents.

Isn't it time, by the way, that we all realize that in essence what Mr. Bernstein proposes is a respect for the immeasurable esthetic characteristics of an area such as ours combined with a plan for graciously sharing these qualities with others?

Bernstein - 'Innacuracy'

EDITOR—We are aware that accuracy of information published is a cornerstone of the great journalistic tradition of which we are so proud in this country. Your newspaper, we are sure, is keenly interested in doing all it can to enhance and further this tradition.

With this thought in mind, we would like to mention an inaccuracy that

No Farm Labor Problem Here

By Betty Branch

While the lack of Braceros for farm labor this year has made headlines all the way to Washington, D.C., there is no dearth of willing workers in Lower Carmel Valley, Luis and Russel Wolters told the Outlook this week.

"We never dreamed we would get so many applications," stated Luis, In former years, the brothers used Braceros for picking and packing the produce of their 100-plus acres ranch. This year for the first time they have leased an additional 50 acres and are nonetheless having no labor problems.

"We simply ran a classified ad for one day, asking applicants to report to our market. More than 100 people turned out the first day. We couldn't believe it!"

Luis said that the turnover for the first few days was dizzying. They hired about 35 the first day and of these, perhaps 10 survived to try a second day, even though Russel hired most of them for only four hours in hopes that the unaccustomed applicants would not grow too exhausted.

"Most of them who turned out were women. Not from Carmel Valley -- mostly from Monterey, some from Carmel. A lot of them thought it would be fun to work in the sun and air. Better than going to one of those reducing places," Luis explained.

"New ones kept turning out every day, so as fast as one batch pooped out there were more. Now, after a week, we have 15 or 18 we know we can count on who will probably last all summer."

Currently the picking is at the old Berwick Farm, on land owned by Miss Edith Mason. Shortly, operations will shift to another field, owned by Walt Pilot, off Schulte Road. After that, there will be picking on the Nicoli Ranch off Scarlett Road -- by that time more crops will have matured on the Mason land and the sequence will start all over again.

The crop on all this land is Fava Beans. Curious would-be consumers will not find these on sale at Wolter's Hacienda Market. The entire crop is shipped to New York.

"We can be sure of selling them in New York," says Luis. "If I put them on sale here, probably I would have to throw them away."

He explained that this variety of beans is a favorite of people of

On page 10 of your April 14 issue you have a headline "Architect Larry Bernstein's Formula..."

Among your subscribers and readers are several people who proudly bear the title "architect." Mr. Bernstein is not one of them. Through at least eight years of work and concentrated effort to a single-minded purpose these people have gained this privilege and goal.

To bear this title is a privilege granted by a state license in California and in most of the other states. It is a violation of our state law for anyone else to refer to himself or be referred to by this title, as you have done in your newspaper.

It is a grave disappointment to your readers who pride themselves in their profession, to see their title applied to just anybody who happens to design a residence. Being "A Legal Newspaper," as you state on your masthead, we are confident you will appreciate the legal aspects of other fields.

UNDER THE OAKS AND AMONG THE CACTI

By MILDRED HATTAN

A play entitled "A Bubble Gum Journey" was enacted by Shawn Buchenroth and the girls who attended her ninth birthday party. Other afternoon activities included a "Nut Hunt" and riding the Crockett pony, "Tar," in the beautiful oak-studded Upper Circle setting.

Shawn's guests were Carole Crockett, Tina Averyt, Sally Bennett, Sienna Howland, Jeanne Boehme, Tere Schenck and Leslie Golden. Mrs. Lisa Buchenroth and her children have only recently moved to the home formerly occupied by the Peter Scardina family. The Scardinas are now living on the Cachagua.

Among CV's new Navy families are Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. J.R. Ashmore of Berwick Drive. Before being assigned to the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, the Ashmores made their home in Springfield, Va., while Cmdr. Ashmore was attached to B.U.P.E.R.S. in Washington, D.C. Their four-year-old son, Scott, attends the Community Chapel Nursery School. Completing the family is Mrs. Ashmore's mother, Mrs. Frances McFarland.

As new military families are welcomed to this area, it is with a note of regret that we are always saying goodbye to others. The latest to receive orders are Lt. and Mrs. George M. Dwyer, who have made their home at 4A Robles Del Rio with children, Lee Ann and Michael.

George, who completes classes at the Naval Postgrad School May 20, had noted a preference for duty on the East Coast to be near family and property interests. But he has instead been assigned to the Alameda Naval Air Station near San Francisco.

The Dwyers have accepted the situation with the humorous "Please-Mr.-MacGregor-don't throw-us-in-the-briar patch-philosophy" and a request from their children to find quarters close enough for a daily visit to the Fleischacker Zoo.

The Dwyers have been active in the Community Chapel Nursery School and Cliff's success as chairman of the Tularcitos Halloween Carnival will long be remembered by Valley children.

Neighbors extend get-well wishes to Mrs. Charles Wall. Alice, who has been a patient at the Community Hospital, is now recuperating at the family home in Robinson Canyon.

A Valleyite and former rodeo champion, San Jurey, served as an arena judge at the Monterey County Horsemen's Horse Show and Rodeo last weekend at the California Rodeo Grounds in Salinas. Jurey is a rancher from the Holthouse Brothers Ranch near Jamesburg.

More than 200 riders and ropers participated in the 12th annual show which officially opens the rodeo season in Salinas.

Coveted honors of "All-County Cowgirl" went to Pam Hoffmann of Pine Canyon Road.

Dr. William David Pratt of Carmel Valley Manor was guest minister Sunday at the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel.

Dr. Pratt, who served for a number of years as a minister of the Congregational Church, replaced Rev. Lawrence K. Whitfield, who with his wife is vacationing in Yosemite Park and near Bakersfield.

An "old oak leaf cluster" to the Carmelo 4-H Club who established records of which the entire community can be proud at the South Coast 4-H Regional Field Day last Saturday in Salinas.

Competing were 4-H clubs from the counties of Alameda, Monterey, San Benito, San Louis Obispo, San Mateo, Santa Barbara, Santa Clara and Santa Cruz.

The day began with an assembly in the auditorium of Salinas High School. Following throughout the morning were demonstration contests, recreation and rural arts contests.

An awards assembly followed the luncheon, at which time individual and one-team demonstrations were presented with two of the top talent acts for entertainment.

Individual ribbons were won by Janet Powers and Martha Crow, whose entry, "Have a Heart," was a blue ribbon winner in the senior team-foods division.

Lynn Powers captured a blue ribbon with her "Be Kind to Your Dough" entry in the junior individual-foods division.

"Hang 'Em," an entry in junior individual home furnishing, won a blue ribbon for Chris Dawson.

Margaret Ingram picked up a green ribbon with "Blooming by Grooming" in the livestock (outdoors) junior individual division.

In the livestock (outdoors) senior individual, Marcia Dahle won a blue ribbon in competition with "Saddle Up!"

The senior team of Dawn Powers and Candy Gregory in the livestock indoors grouping won a green ribbon for "Simple and Sturdy."

Another blue ribbon went to Tom Crow for "The Inside Story" in the category of other animals-senior individual.

The Valleyites placed second in the talent acts with their presentation of "Enter the Villain," their version of an old-time melodrama. Directed by Sue and Beverly Bartlett, the Carmelo thespians had qualified in recent competition in Soledad when they won seven out of eight awards.

Members include Dorothy Collins, Nancy Thornburg, Sandra Sweiss, Elaine Bennett, Lee Ann Dahle, Bobby Conlan, Nancy Meadows, Billy Ingram, Jenny Thornburg, Diane Klech, Julie Bennett, Jean Ann Friddle, Jimmy Ingram, Judie Ward, Billy Conlan, Petie Dahle and George Coleman.

Officers for the coming year were installed recently by members of the Logan Hall PTA. Mrs. August Johnson, first vice president of the 20th District PTA, served as installing officer.

Beginning his second term as president will be Howard E. Stephens. Mrs. Francis Harrison, vice president; Mrs. Irma Brandt, secretary; Mrs. Leslie B. Sellars, treasurer, and Joel Dilworth, auditor-historian, complete the new slate of officers.

Mrs. Frank Lang was chairman of the potluck dinner which preceded the meeting.

Women Slate Stanton House Tour

The unique Robert Stanton house on Scarlett Road will be the site of a public tour Friday sponsored by Salinas Women's Club.

A donation of $2.50 will be requested. Funds will benefit the American Field Service, which arranges exchanges of American and foreign students.

Tickets for the 11 a.m.-2:30 p.m. tour are available at the Stanton home and can be purchased at the tour.

Afterward, Mrs. Virginia Stanton, party editor of House Beautiful magazine, will lecture at White Oaks Theatre at 3 p.m.

LOS ALTOS HILLS—Mrs. Francis L. Beardsley of Carmel, well known mother of 20 children, will participate in a radio symposium over Foothill College FM station KFJC Friday from 8-9 p.m.

Subject for the panel, planned by Ken R. Clark of the college faculty, will be "The Domestic Front." Shifting attitudes toward and of the housewife will be discussed.

KFJC broadcasts on 89.7 mc. FM, though it is not normally received as far south as the Monterey Peninsula.

An insight into some of the problems encountered by Mrs. Beardsley in her busy life can be seen in the title of forthcoming book to be published by Random House. It is entitled "Who gets the Drumstick?"

The symposium has been presented as a five-part program. In April, Virginia (Mrs. Robert) Stanton, food and entertainment consultant for House Beautiful magazine, participated in the discussion of "The Pursuit of Self."

Owen Patrick Gets Published

Owen Patrick of Carmel Valley, electronics instructor at MPC, is the author of a new textbook entitled, "Creative Electronics Fabrication," to be published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston in the fall.

Drawings and photographs by Patrick will be included in the book, which is reported to be the first of its kind in this field.

Nothing previously has been written which covers "all the mechanical aspects of electronics from sheet metal work to the silk screen processes used in printed circuits," said Patrick.

The text is designed to fill the needs of electronics technicians being trained in junior colleges and technical institutes throughout the country.

Citizens Committee Report:

'Carmel Schools English Program Needs More

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This report on the condition of the English curriculum in Carmel Unified School District was presented to the board of education last week by the English subcommittee of the 1965 Citizens Committee. It is one of a series which the board will accept and the Outlook will publish in full. The citizens committee was appointed by Supt. Medill Bair and the board to make recommendations to better district programs.)

(The Outlook comments on the condition of journalism instruction in an editorial on page 4.)

ENGLISH SUB-COMMITTEE

This sub-committee was charged with the duty of evaluating the English program in the Carmel Unified School District. In carrying out this directive, we have held numerous meetings with the English teachers and administrators working in the district.

Our study included programs being offered in some private schools as well as other public school districts and we secured and considered a large large amount of printed material including study sequences from schools outside the district, material from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's "Project English," lesson plans provided by Carmel teachers and student themes and book reports.

This committee is greatly indebted to all of the teachers and administrators who provided us with assistance. Special thanks are due to our liaison officer, Warren Edwards, whose excellent cooperation facilitated our study.

The committee found much that is excellent in the Carmel English program. If what follows seems to emphasize criticism, it is because the mission of the group was to find areas needing improvement.

Throughout our study of the English program, the major problem presented in every meeting with the various teachers and administrators was the lack of constructive communication and coordination within departments, between departments at different grade levels, between departments at the same level at different schools and between administrators and teachers.

This lack is manifested in an uncoordinated program horizontally and vertically. There is no cumulative program for the teaching of English for grades kindergarten through 12.

While many teachers we talked to had a well developed concept of what they wished to accomplish in their classes and a well developed program for accomplishing it, they had virtually no concept of where they fitted into the total program for one through 12.

Also, there is no forum available for the exchange of ideas between teachers as to new methods, materials, and concepts.

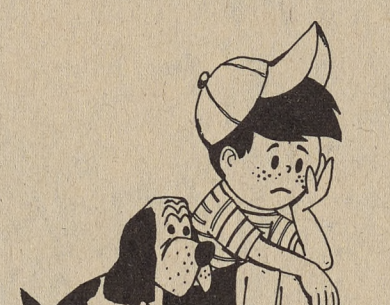
We feel that the school district has recognized this problem and is already working towards its solution.

In view of these findings, we submit the following recommendations for changes in the English program in the Carmel Unified School District.

COURSE OF STUDY

In order to provide continuity in the English program, as cumulative course of study should be developed for each track of grades 1 - 12. This should be the major business of this summer's workshop.

Existing English, language arts and reading curriculum guides from other areas as well as those used in this district should be utilized as a basis for the content and structure of the cumulative course of study. Special attention should also be given to the materials available from the Health, Education and Welfare Department's "Project English" and the college Entrance Examination Board's "Commission on English."



The course of study should include:

—Charts indicating by grade levels the introduction, repetition and expected mastery of each skill needed for reading and writing the English language.

—Basic vocabulary, spelling and reading lists by grade level.

—Lists of supplementary material available, including books, periodicals, films, movies and film strips.

Every teacher should be required to follow the cumulative course of study in planning his teaching program. The course of study should not include methods of teaching, thus giving teachers freedom in planning except with regard to the level and type of work.

Diagnostic tests should be employed at the beginning and end of each school year to determine the effectiveness of teaching and the reliability of the levels stated in the course of study. A particular effort should be made to diagnose lacks in individual students at any level and remedial measures taken at once.

In the development of the course of study, it is suggested that basic grammar and mechanical skills be mastered by the completion of the ninth grade with the last three years being devoted to the refinement of writing skills and the study of literature.

It is further suggested that it be determined whether the linguistic or traditional approach to the teaching of English should be built into the course of study.

SUMMER WORKSHOP PROGRAM

Summer workshop program should be held yearly with the purpose of continually reviewing the English programs for grades one through 12 and the cumulative course of study discussed above. The workshop staff should be composed of volunteer high school, middle school (junior high) and representative elementary school teachers and administrators from the Carmel Unified School District.

—The use of non-professional teachers' aid should be explored as a means of reducing the load on the teachers.

In particular, we suggest investigating the use of such non-professionals for stenographic help, library help and study hall attendants. We also suggest that lay persons with a background in English, whether paid or volunteer, be recruited to study the steady outpouring of new literature and to abstract and suggest materials that should be made available to English teachers.

—A teacher's special area of study and grade level training should always be considered in making class assignments.

CURRICULUM AND STRUCTURE OF CLASSES

This committee has these additional recommendations to make regarding the structure of classes and curriculum:

—In the high school, students should be taught many types of writing - original short stories; poems; one-act plays, and various essay types, book reports, descriptive essays, research papers, character sketches, humorous essays. This is already admirably accomplished by many of the teachers.

—A special effort should be made to study the problems, define a philosophy and develop a program for teaching the low ability and the problem student at all grade levels.

The course of study should be tailored to the needs of these students; specialized instructional material should be made available for these students and remedial reading programs should be expanded.

Teachers with special gifts or training in this field should be assigned to this area. In the high school the course of study should not be a watered down version of the college preparatory program.

—Special attention should be given to development of a program for covering material missed by a student who has moved from one track to a different track.

—The teaching of English and reading should not be separated at the middle school level as is presently being done at Sunset. In the fifth and sixth grades it is suggested that English and reading be taught in consecutive periods, if possible, by the same teacher for each track. In grades 7 through 12, it would be desirable to

HIGH SCHOOL JOURNALISM --'ACADEMIC SLUM?'

By GEORGE W. NEILL
Education News Service

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two features on the state of journalism teaching in California high schools. It is based on an interview with Paul S. Swensson, executive director of the Newspaper Fund and former managing editor of The Minneapolis Star. His full-time job since 1961 has been directed toward upgrading what he calls the "seedbed of journalism"--the teaching of journalism in America's high schools.)

Charging that high school journalism in too many California school districts in an academic slum resembling neither journalism nor education, Paul S. Swensson, executive director of The Wall Street Journal-supported Newspaper Fund, declared in a recent interview that:

—Too few young people are considering careers in journalism and the quality of these people, while improving, is not impressive.

—High school people responsible for "tending the seedbed" of journalism are far too often poorly prepared, inadequately compensated and overworked.

Swensson, who was formerly managing editor of The Minneapolis Star, said his studies on the state of journalism in California--as well as in the rest of the country -- have revealed that high school journalism has almost no connection with the daily or weekly newspaper in most communities; that high school journalism is a "marvelous way to share school news with the community," but this rarely happens; that high school journalism classes fail their first assignment -- to teach students to write -- because the teachers are usually untrained in this basic skill of English.

Eleven of the 16 California colleges and universities which report journalism enrollments, Swensson said, graduated in 1964 a total of 187 men and women with B. A. degrees and 27 more with masters degrees in journalism. "But the num-

HICKS LANDS WHOPPER

Fisherman's luck was with Les Hicks of 66 Sage Road last week when he landed a fighting six-pound steelhead just below Los Padres Dam near Prince's Camp.

What's more, he caught the 24 1/2 inch fish on minimum weight and size equipment. Using only a two-pound test leader and a tiny size 10 hook, the fish took a "Silver Doctor."

The stubborn steelhead headed for the rocks and under the brush on the river edge, giving Hicks a half-hour battle to land it. Then he had no net, so Russ Lund, his fishing companion, waded in, shoes and all, and assisted in landing the fish with his hands.

Undersea Traffic Jams Occur, Scuba Diver Duffy Tells Lions

New residents are arriving in California in such overwhelming numbers that traffic jams even occur 35-65 feet below the Monterey Bay, as shown in slides by Scuba diver Ted Duffy at the dinner meeting of the Carmel Valley Lions Club held Wednesday at the Plaza Linda Restaurant.

Duffy, who owns the Seven Seas Skin Diving Center in New Monterey, illustrated his lecture with slides of underwater plant and marine life.

One of the slides contained the head of a startled skin diver who happened into camera range as Duffy was in the process of shooting a school of fish — an occurrence becoming more and more commonplace as the popularity of the sport increases; he said, Duffy was instrumental in organizing the Pacific Grove diving rescue unit now known as McElhaney's Navy and has participated in 40 recovery missions.

Mrs. Knoff Leaves Saudi Arabia for CV

Mrs. Ethel Knoff, who has been living in Saudi Arabia, is enjoying a visit with her granddaughter, Mrs. Jack Rushmer of Boronda Road.

This is her first visit with relatives in three years, and another granddaughter, Mrs. Leslie Jonas of Lafayette, will join her sister in welcoming Mrs. Knoff to the Valley.

Mrs. Knoff went to Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, five years ago with Mrs. Rushmer's father who works with Arabian-American Oil Company. Since he is now retiring and will be returning to California after an extended trip through Europe, she came ahead to stay with her granddaughters.

Enroute to the United States from Dhahran, Mrs. Knoff stopped off in Paris for a tour of the Louvre and also visited in New York before arriving in Carmel Valley.

Mrs. Rushmer has planned a salad luncheon on Thursday in honor of her grandmother, after which the guests will attend the Carmel Valley Women's Club fashion show. She also plans to take Mrs. Knoff to the Junior League Footlight Follies at the Wharf Theatre over the weekend to complete a busy week.

Another Boronda Road guest is Mrs. Louis Fine of Los Angeles who is staying with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Bussinger. Mrs. Emmett Thompson of Soquel, a longtime friend of Mrs. Bussinger's, will also visit during the week and the three of them will attend the luncheon on Thursday given by Mrs. Rushmer.

No Farm Labor Problem Here

By Betty Branch

Italian or Oriental extraction. Even though the Monterey Peninsula has its share of such citizens, "nearly all of them grow Fava beans in their own back yards, and nobody seems interested."

Did the Wolters offer unusually favorable working conditions in order to attract so many willing hands?

"A movable toilet is the only condition we provide," laughed Luis. "The kind you set up in a field and move to the next one."

He said they pay $1.25 per hour. The real difficulty is that Braceros were capable of producing seven to eight baskets per hour whereas their American replacements average only about three. Furthermore, Braceros were willing to work twelve hours per day during the season whereas few of the American workers can stand even eight, Luis says ruefully.

"We have one German girl who is really a dilly at packing, though."

Things seem to be working out well and in future years the brothers may lease even more land, if available, for their farming activities. Irrigation facilities as well as legal arrangements limit the possibilities here, however.

Not to mention the homebuilders!

Later than you think?

A bright yellow sign stands at the edge of Carmel Valley Road scarce 100 yards away from the old Berwick fields where the bean-pickers in their floppy sun-hats bend busily over the crops.

Until a few days ago, the sign said merely, Safeway Stores" underneath the larger letters reading "Carmel Valley Shopping Center."

Now some new lettering has appeared. "Valley Cinema" and "Steinmetz Pharmacy" are the current announcement.

The shopping complex just below Farm Center which was announced late last year is scheduled to open for business on May 1, 1966. Other leases are in the making and plans for the buildings are being rushed to completion, developer Paul Porter of Mid-Valley Associates confirms. Plans must be completed before the County Planning Commission considers, probably at the end of this month, the possibility of placing the shopping center under "PC" or planned commercial zoning. It is now zoned C-1, and the new zoning would merely insure more comprehensive planning for parking, landscaping, etc. Under "PC" only 25% of the land may be built upon -- the rest is devoted to parking and landscaping.

How about this future movie theatre? Paul says it will seat approximately 400 people and will be of the Hollywood type, known as "class A" in the trade, rather than of the art variety. Carmel Valley already has a first-class Art cinema, of course -- that little gem known as Tantamount.

More announcements can be expected from Mid-Valley Associates, and soon. Meantime, the 58 homesites in the first unit of Rancho Tierra Grande subdivision, just above the future shopping center, are just about sold out. A second batch of homesites in Unit #2 will be ready for development soon.

As for what implication all this might have for the future of bean-picking in Carmel Valley...we leave this to the imaginations of our readers.

Bylaws on CVPOA Agenda

By-law revisions will be considered by Carmel Valley Property Owners Association Thursday at the Community Center at 8 p.m.

Notice of the meeting has been mailed to all members, according to Pres. St. E. P. (Step) Tyner, and attendance will be restricted to the membership which since the opening of a membership drive has increased to more than 300.

"New members will be welcome, as always," Tyner pointed out, adding that anyone wishing to join the group could do so at the door before the meeting. Anyone owning property in Carmel Valley is eligible to join at $ per person. Residents of Carmel Valley who do not own property may become associate members of r the same fee.

Also on tomorrow night's agenda are the appointment of several special committees and a discussion of the planlines for four lanes on Carmel Valley Road between Dorris Drive and Panetta Road.

Valley Pool to Open May 22

Saturday, May 22, has been chosen as the opening date for Carmel Valley Community Pool, manager Ken White told the Outlook this week.

Preliminary preparations prevent opening any earlier, despite some thought that the facilities would open this weekend, he said.

The pool will be available for recreational swimming 1-5 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

Admission will cost the same as it did last year, he added: the fee is 35¢ for children and 65¢ for adults. 15¢ from the children's admission and 20¢ from the adult charge is returned to the Community Center.

Continuity, Other Improvements Needed in English Program, Committee Says

schedule English for a double period every other day so that class time writing assignments and discussions of literature could proceed without frequent interruptions.

—Students should know how to use the library and dictionary by the time they reach high school. A library program such as that used at River School for fourth graders should be utilized district-wide and a follow-up program be instituted at the middle school.

—Courses in journalism or communication arts and drama should be established and the speech program should be expanded at the high school level. Such courses should be elective and not in lieu of the regular English curriculum.

—A review of all grammar and mechanics in the first semester of the senior year should be offered for those planning to take the College Boards and Subject A type examination.

—The study of myths should be defined for a particular year rather than being studied by various teachers in various depths in the fifth, sixth, seventh, ninth and 10th grades as is presently being done.

—In the elementary schools the skills needed to present research project reports should be developed in an orderly manner. Reports in the early grades should be oral. Outline and written reports should be required only when the English skills necessary for these forms have been mastered.

—The high school newspaper should be expanded.

MISCELLANEOUS

—More audio-visual aids are needed including movie projectors, tape recorders and record players.

—A reading laboratory should be established at the high school.

—Adequate facilities should be provided for the speech program in the high school.

—A room for teacher meetings, paper grading and pupil conferences should be provided at the middle school.

—A more adequate requisition and supply system is needed at the middle school.

—If the teachers within a department want to regularly use a text other than the state text enough of these books should be provided for all students.

Respectfully submitted,
Richard T. Wilsdon, chairman
Mrs. Gregg King
Mrs. Howard McFann

Teachers Call Journalism Instruction in California High Schools Academic Slum

ber who actually went to work was not 214, for we have not deducted those claimed by Uncle Sam or Dan Cupid."

Actually, he continued, there was not one new reporter from this principal source of supply for each of the 124 daily newspapers in California.

"Freshman journalism enrollment was up last September in seven of 10 California schools; in only one school did freshman boys outnumber the girls; six of the deans and department chairmen reported the quality of students 'better or much better.'"

Swensson said more good students would be attracted to journalism if more high school journalism teachers were really competent to handle their assignment.

"Unfortunately," he said, "only a small percentage of journalism teachers are really qualified. Forty per cent of the journalism teachers who received study grants from a national foundation in 1962 had never taken a single journalism course and 70 per cent had fewer than nine credits in journalism."

California journalism teachers, Swensson said, list seven major blights besetting high school journalism:

—Lack of time to do a proper job of teaching journalism or of putting out student publications. Some report 50-100 hours a month in uncompensated overtime.

—Journalism classes and newspaper staffs are weak in quality, short in numbers and the boys are conspicuously absent.

—Many school newspapers are published so infrequently that they contain no news and fail badly as a teaching tool.

—Principals and superintendents often are unsympathetic or indifferent to these problems.

—Facilities are inadequate. Typewriters, bulletin boards and even staff rooms are in very short supply. In some cases they are missing.

—Teaching materials, such as stylebooks, courses of study, journalism curriculum guides, exercises in writing and editing, are unavailable or in short supply.

—Financing the school newspaper, whether by advertising, subscription fees, or a variety of money-raising efforts such as dances and candy sales, is a genuine headache for large numbers of teachers.

Swensson said the Newspaper Fund was established in 1959 to assist high school journalism teachers to do a better job and to encourage career interest in journalism among students. More than $1,250,000 has been disbursed in grants to send 3,000 high school journalism teachers and publications advisors to summer school.

Valley Art to be Auctioned Sunday

Carmel Valley will be well represented at the Beacon House Art Auction to be held Sunday, May 16, at 2:00, in the Terrace Room of the Mark Thomas Inn. An annual event, the auction is held to raise funds for Beacon House alcoholic rehabilitation center in Pacific Grove. Leading artists and photographers donate a fine representative piece of their work to be auctioned to the highest bidder. Sealed bids on exhibited works may be placed at a preview party to be held tonight at 8:00 at the Mark Thomas.

Valley artists Margaret Ziegler, John Boit Morse, Bernice Fouratt, Joe Ataide, and S. F. B. Morse have already turned in paintings to the auction committee. A small and select group of outstanding photographic art will also be auctioned. Jim Ziegler, frequent Outlook contributor, Al Weber, of the MPC photographic department, and the Outlook's own Jack Nielsen have donated work to this group.

Mrs. Charles Cunningham, who formerly lived in the Valley reports that two of her hostesses are also Val eyites; Marjorie Sue Otter, of Schulte Road, an MPC art major, and Cobina Beaudette, of Rancho Tierra Grande.

Combined luncheon and auction tickets are $3.50 each, with tickets for the auction only selling for $1.00. Reservations may be made by calling 624-2256 624-5641.

Surprise!

150 Help Underhills Celebrate Anniversary

A surprise party is always hard to keep a secret, but a 50th wedding anniversary celebration involving 150 guests would seem impossible to keep quiet!

However, on Friday Gen. James Underhill, (USMC, ret.) and Mrs. Underhill of Robles del Rio, completely astounded their guests at a cocktail party with the announcement of their golden anniversary.

After guests arrived at the Copper Cup Room of the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School, they learned the true nature of the gathering. Only a close handful of the Underhill's friends knew of the reason for the invitation and they were sworn to secrecy until 5 p.m. that evening!

In the receiving line at the reception were Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Underhill of Berkeley, Colonel Underhill, (U.S.A. ret.), of San Francisco, representing Gen. Underhill's family, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert McFarland of Lafayette. McFarland is Mrs. Underhill's nephew.

Ambulance Helps At Three Calls

The new Red Cross ambulance manned by the volunteer first aid crew responded to a medical emergency call May 3. Mrs. William Heston of El Cuenco was taken to the Community Hospital.

Dr. S. Maus Purple was the second medical emergency call made that week. The volunteer first-aiders made the trip from 92 Laurel Drive to the Community Hospital May 5.
